BUILDING BUILDINGS ON THE "ANTE" SCHEME

Five story buildings will soon be as common in the business district as poker games were in the old days. For Dick Caples started something when he poured that San Antonio and Broadway building like an old timer poured three fingers of whiskey.

The Roberts-Banner building immediately began to make a noise like five reinforced concrete stories. Major Bill Fewell saw uncle Dick's five and raised him five. Gen. Anson Mills went the Caples building one better in his original announcement, then made it two better and finally ended by going the limit of 12 stories.

Now O. M. Baum has broken into the skyscraper class with the announcement that June will not see west San Antonio street without the foundation for a five story reinforced concrete building.

With the American National being built and the Rio Grande building finished, it will be soon necessary to have strap hinges put in the necks of our friend from over Lordburg way in order than Don Keadie, when he comes, may look at the tall buildings without inconvenience.

ASKS FOR BIDS ON HOLMES BUILDING

The new dining and cleaning works of Clyde Holmes, which is to be built on the corner of Texas and Columbia streets has been let out for bids by Frost & Frost. The building will be built of reinforced concrete and will be one story and a large basement with vaulted heavy enough to permit a second story to be added later.

The building will include a number of modern improvements, one of which will be a storage place where furs may be stored during the summer months in mothproof compartments. A number of new mechanical pressing machines will also be installed in the building when it is completed.

NO NEED TO BE THIN SCRAWNEY OR SALLOW

It's Only the Stomach That Isn't Furnishing Enough Nutritious Matter to the Body.

If you are thin and want to be plump; if you have wrinkles in your face that you are not proud of, if your skin is sallow or subject to pimples or blackheads take Mi-o-na stomach tablets for two weeks and notice the change.

Nine-tenths of the thin people are thin because the stomach is not active; it is not mixing thoroughly with the natural digestive juices the food puts into it, and in consequence is not extracting from the food enough nourishing matter that the blood can distribute to every part of the body. If the stomach does not do its work you eat in vain, without getting the food properly nourishment in the food you eat is passed along without giving to the body any flesh building elements.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets quickly build up the stomach and it does its duty and extracts from the food all the elements necessary to form good solid flesh. If you are thin try a two weeks treatment of Mi-o-na stomach tablets; they are small, easily swallowed, and one or two with each meal will work wonders.

Mi-o-na stomach tablets are guaranteed to cure indigestion, acute or chronic, and to put any abused or overworked stomach in shape, or money back.

In five minutes one or two Mi-o-na stomach tablets will stop stomach disturbance, belching, heartburn, sour stomach and any after dinner distress. In a few days nervousness, biliousness, headache and dizziness will disappear. Mi-o-na is the best prescription for indigestion ever written. It is sold by druggists everywhere, and by Kelly & Pollard at 50 cents a large box, or by mail, all charges prepaid, from Booth's Mi-o-na, Buffalo, N. Y.

With the present crop, there is every reason to believe will produce an average of 50 bushels of fine grain to the acre. It is very certain to gain much favor. The Victim of Fatigue.
A new popular conception of industrial morals is necessary, according to Dr. Henry Baird Pavill of Chicago, to the continued health and efficiency of the nation. Dr. Pavill, in an address at the "Forum of Fatigue" before the conference here last evening, reported that the results of long continued experiments in chemical and physiological laboratories indicate that in fatigue from overwork a change in cellular structure occurs in the body of the worker. Just what these changes are have not been determined accurately nor have their effects upon the continued efficiency of the worker been scientifically demonstrated. The speaker urged the need for the chemist, biologist and physiologist to pursue their investigations further but submitted that there were certain well defined lines of social procedure which ought to be prosecuted upon the basis of knowledge already attained.

A Popular Problem.
"The purpose of this discussion," said Dr. Pavill, "is to further the establishment of fatigue as a factor in understanding the number and arranging the hours of labor. It is not purely merciful or perhaps primarily merciful, but fundamentally, an attempt to economize the powers of our working population. We are not dealing with a mechanical problem. It is not a mere physical problem. It is distinctly a human problem in which the interrelation of physical, mental and industrial needs must be intelligently interpreted. No single moment along these lines can be regarded as final, but even very useful, except as it establishes beyond question, recognition of the principle that labor is a human function and intended to elevate and not to degrade the race."

"Long ago, students of industrial conditions came to recognize as a type, the individual who is 'spent' by reason of undue labor before maturity. We have hardly yet grasped the idea that the same factors, in the modern world, result upon the immature, operate somewhat less manifestly in all laborers. The two factors, specialization and economy of production, are bringing us to an industrial crisis which will have to be reckoned with. Specialization means beyond a doubt, industrial effectiveness, but its counterbalance is monotony; economy of production means especially, economy of time, but its counterbalance is 'speeding up.' Out of these two factors arise the great offenses against human endurance and community welfare. Any conception which makes material production paramount to the essential interest in the units entering into that production can only aggravate our present condition and accelerate an inevitable disaster."

Abuses of Insane.
Announcing his abandonment of the role of militant reformer, assumed in his book, "A Mind That Found Itself," published in March, 1908, Clifford W. Beers, the author, promulgated his new program in relation to the treatment of insanity in an address before the conference here this morning. Mr. Beers was himself for some time a patient in several hospitals for the insane, and, after his recovery, wrote the book which created considerable stir throughout the country. He told of many abuses which patients in such in-

Institutions are obliged to suffer and proposed rigid legislative inquiries into the conduct and management of institutions for the insane. His more recently, however, reconsidered that position, and now proposes a system of social service in the institutions themselves and a campaign of education for the general public, to the end that insanity may be treated as a disease, that the stigma of having suffered from it may be removed from the popular mind, and that social workers may be trained to deal with incipient cases of insanity, threatened nervous breakdowns, etc., much as incipient consumptives are now taught how to get well by right living.

He urged the establishment of state societies for mental hygiene similar to the one in Connecticut of which he is the executive secretary.

Would Change Juvenile Courts.

Juvenile court legislation in the United States must be re-drafted and the machinery of juvenile courts must be revamped, according to the dictum of Bernard Flexner, of Louisville, Ky., in an address before the conference.

While the juvenile court laws of many states infer that the child is the ward, to be protected and cared for by the state, the terminology of the law and the practice of the courts still bear too much resemblance to the criminal code and criminal practice.

"It is generally conceded," said Mr. Flexner, "that the proceeding involving the child is equitable in its nature, in which the state, as the ultimate parent of all children within its borders stands in loco parentis. I believe that every part of the law that involves a criminal conception of it should be eliminated. I would strike from the law all that relates to a jury trial. In this new legislation I would not leave a vestige of the older method as an evidence of adherence still to criminal procedure. I would therefore write more clearly into these laws than has yet been done, the benevolent principle that the proceeding involving the child is not criminal and that the child, furthermore, is not to be treated as a criminal."
